

'Adopt a Wreck'

The ICZM Archaeology and Historic Environment working group are to hold a meeting to encourage people to get involved in helping to conserve and research our underwater heritage. The event is being held as a means of encouraging divers, and anyone else who's interested to take part in the 'Adopt-A-Wreck' scheme devised by the Nautical Archaeology Society (in conjunction with the Receiver of Wreck's Office and the diving organisations).

The event will begin at 7.30pm on Friday 19th March and will be hosted by the University of Hull. Chris Underwood, director of NAS Training, Sophia Exelby (Receiver of Wreck) and Mark Beattie-Edwards (NAS Training) will be talking about the scheme and how you can become involved.

Please contact Dr. Malcolm Lillie MIFA, Department of Geography, The University of Hull, on (01482) 465325 to reserve your free place.

More information on the 'Adopt a Wreck' scheme can be found at the website of the Nautical Archaeology Society at <http://www.nasportsmouth.org.uk/index.html>
