UNIVERSITY
OF HULL

Inspired by the power of our global community

Founded in 1927 as a 'centre of light and culture' for Hull, the University is proud to play a leading role in the educational, social, economic and cultural development of our unique city and region.

This strong sense of place remains at the heart of our identity. The global perspective and expertise of our talented people and our dynamic collaborations with partners locally, nationally and internationally enable us to bring communities together—to enrich lives, address the challenges facing our region and share solutions that are transferable across an increasingly connected yet polarised world. It is this union between education, research and knowledge exchange, and between the local and the global, which defines our internationally engaged civic university.

Motivated by society's challenges

Persistent injustices exist across many different areas of society: the inhumanity of modern slavery and exploitation, inequalities in education and health outcomes, and regional disparities in employment opportunities and economic security, to name but a few. Meanwhile, the threats from climate change grow ever more urgent, requiring a rapid transition to clean growth and a low-carbon future. Moreover, these are intersecting challenges, with the climate crisis a further source of injustice as its most severe impacts are set to fall on those communities both least likely to contribute to its causes and least able to mitigate and adapt to its effects.

We know that a singular focus on economic growth brings disproportionate benefits to those with advantage.

To achieve a more equitable and sustainable society, inclusive social and economic development is essential, and this is the case both for the Humber and globally.

Our strategy recognises that these are challenges with no quick solutions. Making a difference will require the dedicated, long term, collective effort of a strong community over at least the next decade. The University of Hull seeks to drive this change, drawing on our areas of strength and collaborating with partners from our region and around the world. Working across the multidisciplinary themes of energy and environment, social justice and responsibility, health, cultural and creative industries, and business and logistics, we will shape socially and environmentally just solutions. Our strategy establishes this as our enduring and consistent objective through to 2030. This date is aligned with the target set by the UN Sustainable Development Goals, and takes in the significant milestone of our pledge to become carbon neutral by our centenary year in 2027.

Fulfilling our vision

Strategy 2030 sets out a clear and stable vision of our purpose and the qualities that will characterise both our work and our University community. These provide a framework against which consistent decisions can be taken, resources can be prioritised, and coherent plans can be made.

The quality and impact of our work is dependent on the University's own strength and resilience. Therefore, our strategy is underpinned by the need for robust financial sustainability and operational effectiveness and efficiency. We have already made significant progress in this regard, and we will continue throughout to work as one University to invest in strength and opportunity, divest from areas of diminishing return and low potential, and focus on delivering excellence consistently across all areas and facets of our business.

In all we do, our approach will be inclusive, empowering and progressive.

We will be motivated by the desire to lead creative change at the forefront of environmental sustainability and social justice.

Through the talent and dedication of our people, our strong sense of place and the vitality of our partnerships, we will together shape a fairer, brighter and carbon neutral future.

Measuring our success

Strategy 2030 has been developed in consultation with staff and students, building on their prior engagement in defining our vision, values and behaviours.

Our strategy describes the qualities that will characterise our success, and we will monitor our progress against these strategic ambitions through key performance indicators and qualitative measures. Equally, however, our success will be evidenced through our shared organisational aspirations, our culture, policies and processes and, fundamentally, the impact of our education, research, knowledge exchange and partnerships.

Collectively, these performance measures and the milestones achieved through the period to 2030 will illustrate our progress against the following overarching indicators of success.

People

- 1. We set and achieve ambitious targets for access, continuation, attainment and progression, enabling us to attract and support the success of a diverse range of talented students in sustainable numbers
- 2. We are recognised by current and future colleagues as an inclusive employer of choice

Place

- 3. Our campus is carbon neutral by 2027
- 4. Our innovative education, research and knowledge exchange leads change that addresses global and local challenges and generates fair and sustainable solutions
- 5. Our close collaboration with employers enables the seamless integration of education and training with regional and national workforce planning

Partnership

- 6. Through meaningful and effective partnerships between academic and professional service staff, and with our students, all members of our University community enjoy an experience that is outstanding
- 7. Our partnerships advance our strategy, deliver mutual benefits and amplify the impact each partner could achieve alone

The success of Strategy 2030 will be reviewed regularly by the University Leadership Team and the University Council. The seven overarching indicators of success will form the framework for focused scrutiny of progress against the strategy's key themes.
