Please could you tell me what support is available to students who report they were the victim of sexual violence? - At the University of Hull, we are committed to ensuring that our students receive appropriate support and guidance following any incident of sexual violence, assault or harassment. Our specialist wellbeing advisors work within our Mental Health and Wellbeing Service and specialise in supporting and preventing sexual misconduct & harassment. Their role is to support students by providing; emotional support; advice and guidance about internal and external reporting options; supporting with managing the impact on studies and other aspects of life; help to access other services within the university and in the wider community; adjustments to teaching and learning and advice and help with accommodation and finances. The in-house support provided is enhanced by our external partnerships through which students can access specialist services as ISVA's on campus, brief solution focused counselling 7 days per week and long term psychotherapy to help those students who are dealing with the impact of sexual trauma.
